

I am writing regarding Low Power FM (LPFM) broadcasting and how that might disrupt the service I get from KLOVE and it's translator service. I only receive KLOVE (a national radio station) via translator, and in many of my travels I can receive KLOVE because of translator service.

KLOVE is a positive, family oriented radio station that is listener supported - which proves its worth. Not many radio stations are of such benefit to churches and communities. I feel it would be tragic for KLOVE's broadcast to be displaced by LPFM broadcasts.

Local is good, but national broadcasts such as KLOVE are a true community service.
